All forms of assets other than money- land, bullion, goods, shares, securities, etc., are clubbed together into a single category called 'Bonds'

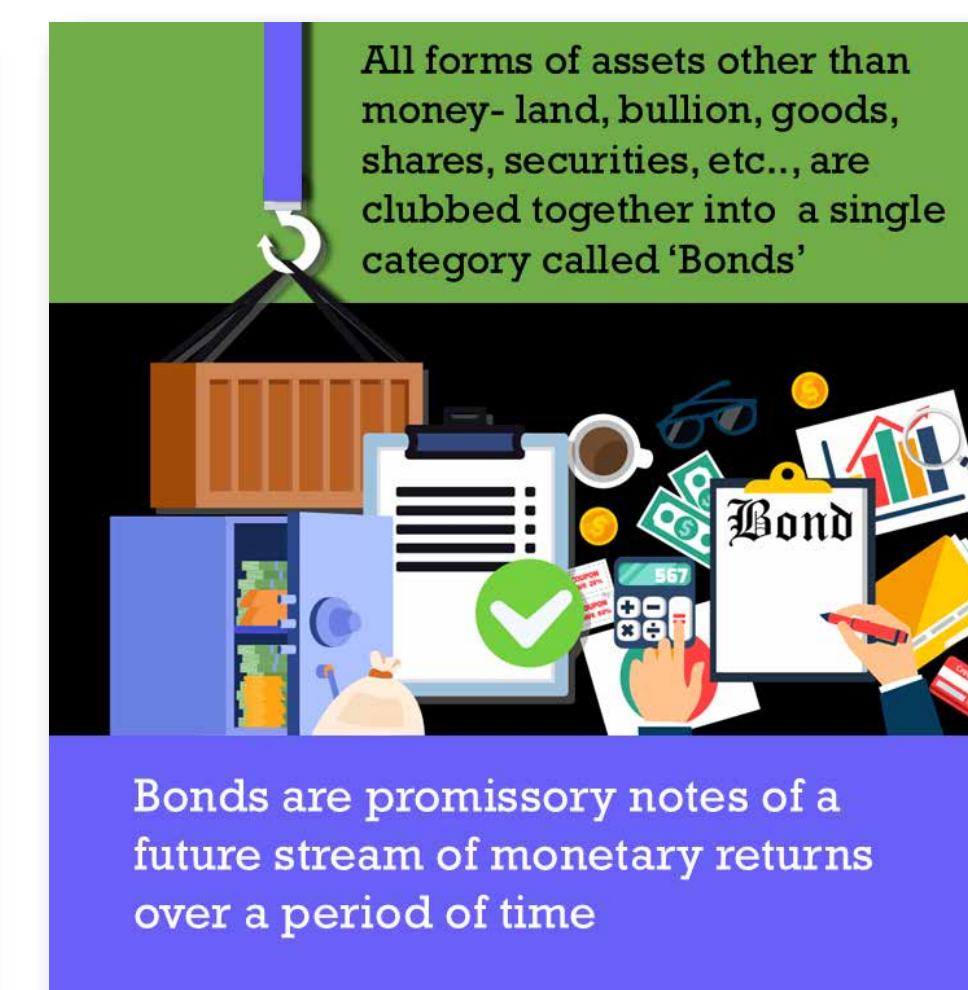

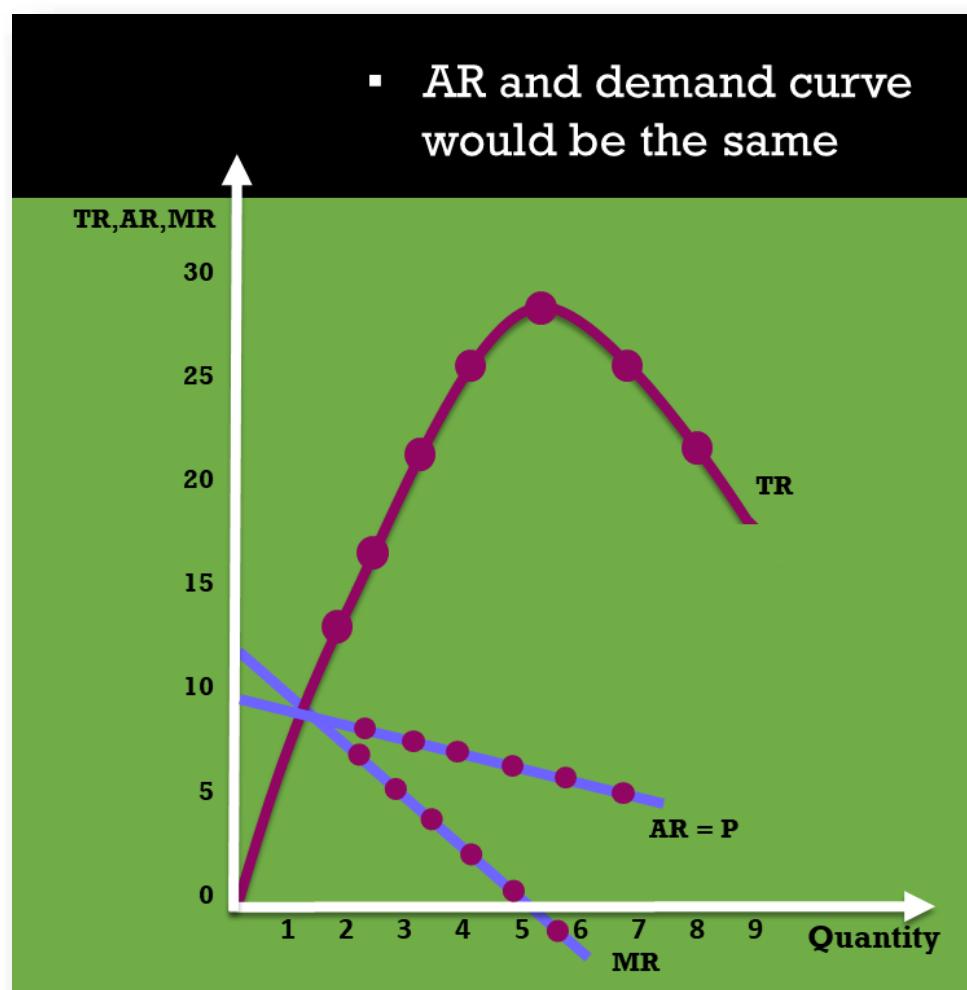

Bonds are promissory notes of a future stream of monetary returns over a period of time

- GDP and non-monetary exchanges
- Many non-monetary exchanges such as services rendered by home makers(house wives) are not included in GDP , so underestimation may happen

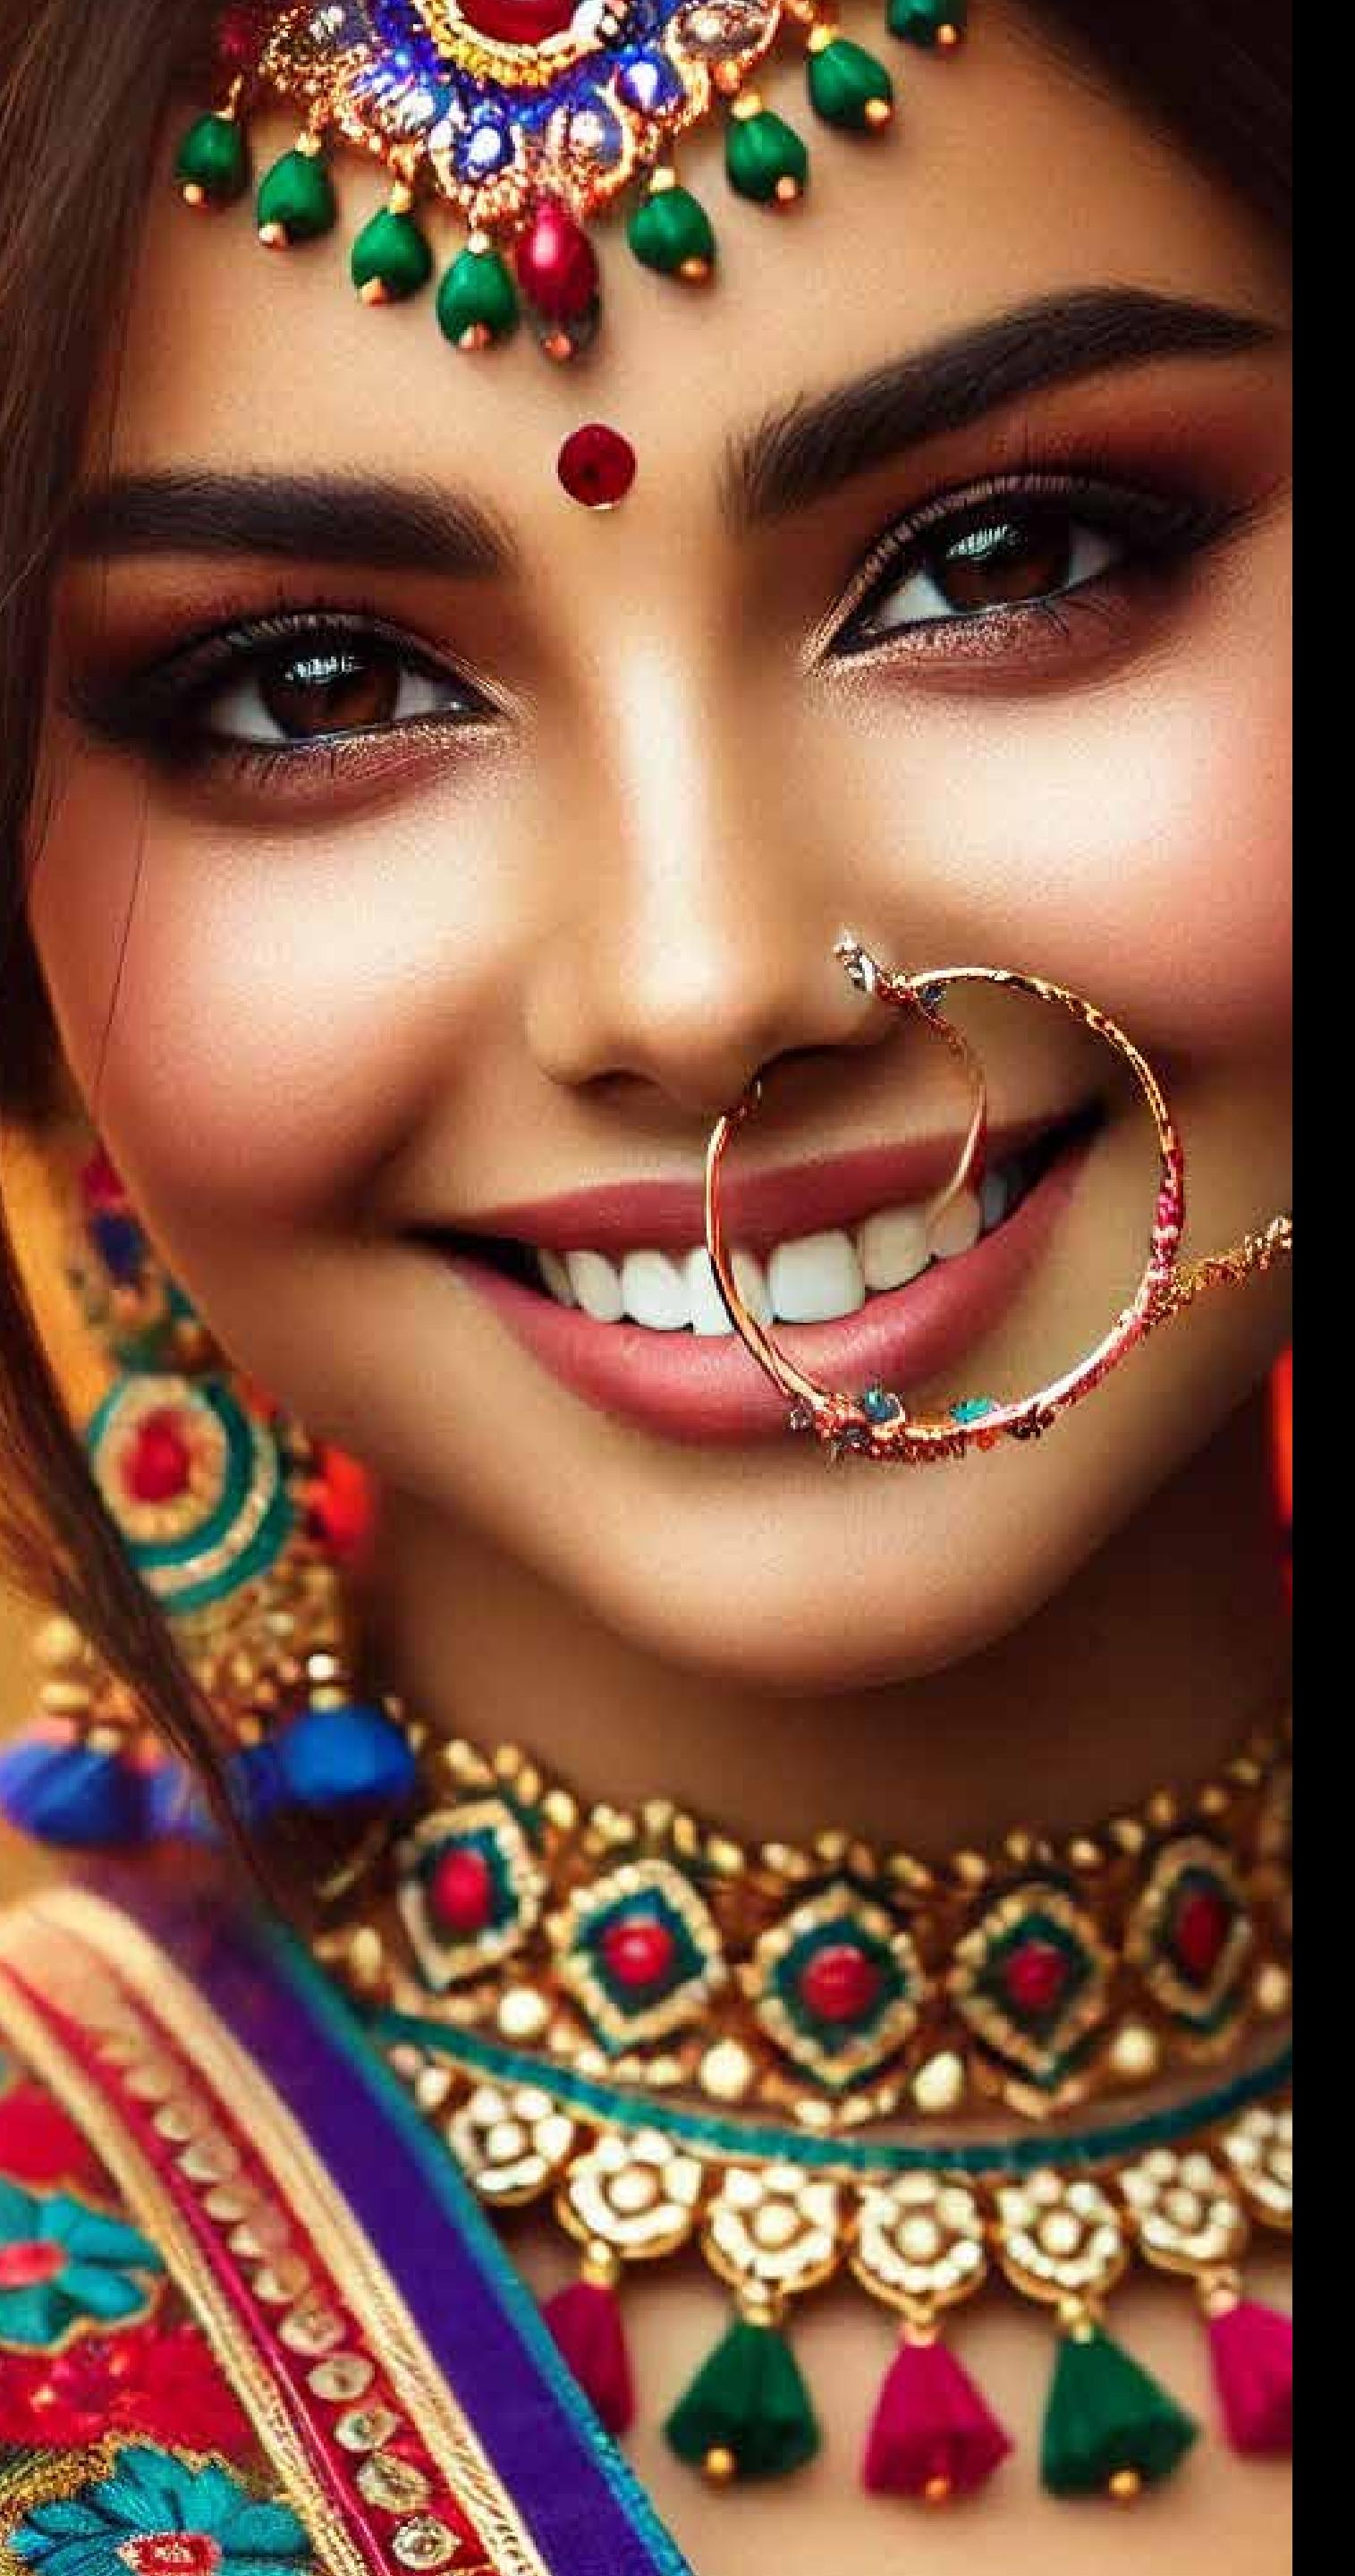

- Helpful to understand the functioning of the economy
- Helpful in comparison of various economies
- Useful in planning and forecasting
- Helpful in studying growth and development
- Helpful in studying in fluctuations in the economic policies and programmes
